Scientific Landing on the Moon Set For '61

U.S. Maps Its Space Exploits

By RAY CROMLEY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON—The U.S. plans a fantastic series of space craft for its try at catching the Reds in the planetary races of the 1960's.

Item — "Ranger-Mariner" space craft. This odd National Aeronautics and Space Administration vehicle will look something like the Wright Brothers' first airplane (Fig. 1).

It is designed — for Project Ranger — to "hard" land the first U.S. scientific instruments on the moon sometime in late 1961. These instruments will measure "moonquakes." They'll gather information about the consistency, structure and temperature of the surface of the moon.

This outlandish craft is also expected to be used on the first U.S. reconnaissance missions to Mars and Venus sometime in 1964 as a part of Project Mariner.

This "Ranger-Mariner" craft is scheduled to "fly" away from the earth into space with antenna fixed on earth and with its solar panels fixed on the sun for stability. If it gets off course, it can be brought back on the track by commands from scientists on earth.

On its way "down" to the surface of the moon, it will take and transmit television pictures. Retro-rockets will slow it down for a rough landing on the moon. That means it will hit the moon while probably traveling between 250 and 350 miles an hour.

The main space craft, of course, is expected to be destroyed by the hard impact. But the "payload" of scientific instruments presumably will land unscathed.

Item — "Surveyor A" space craft. Looking like a mammoth tripod, this craft will land gently on the moon with a 100 to 300-pound payload (Fig. 2).

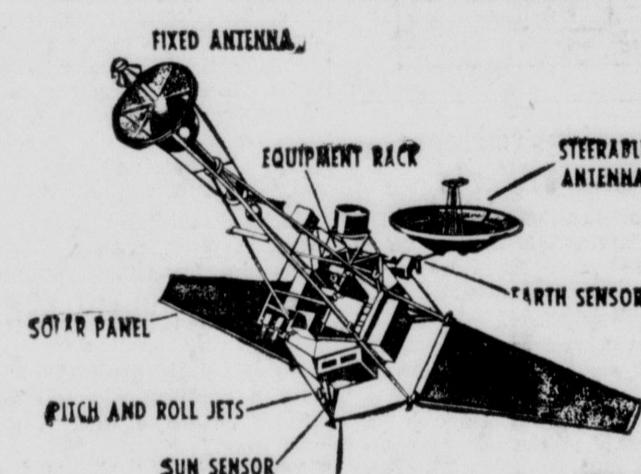

Included will be a television camera and a variety of other scientific instruments that will examine the magnetic and gravitational fields of the moon, the composition of the moon's "atmosphere," its surface and its subsurface.

It's hoped that at least one of the instruments carried will be able to chemically analyze the soil and send back reports on what it finds.

The decision on which company will build "Surveyor A" is to be made early in 1961. "Surveyor A," itself, is expected to be ready for its moon trip and its "soft" landing on the moon sometime in 1963.

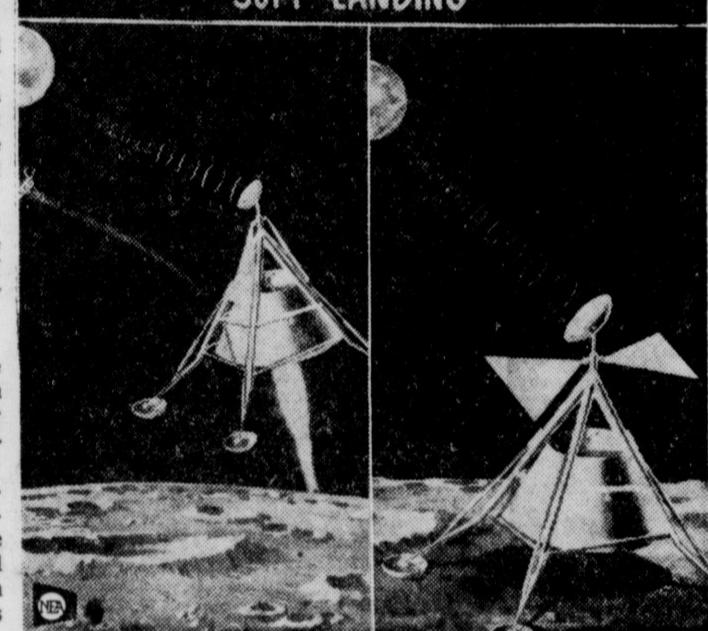

Item — "Prospector" space craft. When the mammoth Saturn rocket is available, it will pave the way for much larger and even more ingenious space craft. By 1966 or 1967, the "Prospector" is expected to be ready with a variety of alternate payloads.

Cuba-Argentina Break Expected On OAS Attack

Roa Launches Bitter Exchange; Rejects Latin's Protests

HAVANA (P) — bitter exchange between Fidel Castro's Cuba and Argentina sparked predictions today of a diplomatic break between the two Latin American countries.

Cuba's Foreign Minister Raul Roa brought the issue to a head Monday night. In a sharp note to Argentina ambassador Julio A. Amosco, he flatly rejected Argentina's protests over his recent attack on the government of President Arturo Frondizi before the Organization of American States in San Jose, Costa Rica.

Roa also sent a note-mild in tone-brushing aside Brazil's protests against his attack on Foreign Minister Horacio Lafer.

The exchange was prompted when Roa launched a biting attack on Argentina and Brazil at San Jose after they joined 17 other OAS nations in a censure of Cuba for agreeing to accept Soviet military aid in event of a U.S. attack.

Roa countered the Argentine protest by declaring it was impossible that he had offended the dignity of the Argentine people since "the dignity of the Argentine people was defended and honored in San Jose by the delegation of Cuba and not by the delegation of Argentina."

Argentina's behavior at the OAS conference demonstrated, said Roa, "its frank adhesion to interventionist and aggressive maneuvers planned and organized by the U.S. government against Cuba."

He said Argentina had joined in opposing a Cuban resolution which would respect the rights of the Cuban people to rule their own destiny. The Cuban resolution, which was defeated, charged the United States with economic aggression.

The Russians put the two on display under television lights in the gilt-ornamented Journalists Club. From a platform, the two detailed the two complaints against the United States and spilled to newsmen what they said were NSA communications-intelligence secrets. They said the United States had broken the codes of friendly nations and even planted a spy in a friendly embassy.

Mitchell and Martin, bachelors since service in the U.S. Navy, refused to tell how they got to Moscow from NSA headquarters at Ft. Meade, Md. They are known to have come by way of Mexico City.

"That might prevent others from taking the same route," they said.

The two left Ft. Meade late in June on vacation, ostensibly to visit relatives on the West Coast. They never reached the coast.

Mitchell and Martin professed to NSA policies as he pushed his Democratic presidential drive into the mountain and Pacific Northwest states.

He charged Monday night that Soviet planes bound for the Congo are being allowed to refuel at a NATO base in Athens. Kennedy kept up a tattoo of attacks on Eisenhower's leadership.

The Democratic nominee wired Secretary of State Christian A. Herter seeking a telephone interview to explore the administration's position on this matter.

With what he was a highly satisfactory round of Labor Day campaigning in Michigan behind him, Kennedy repeated his charge that the Republican administration has surrendered first place in the world to the Soviets and is standing motionless at home.

He charged Monday night that Soviet planes bound for infiltration and subversion missions to the Congo are being allowed to refuel at a NATO base

Columbiana to Open Street Fair Thursday

COLUMBIANA — It's festival time again in Columbiana. Beginning Thursday—for the 74th year—the annual street fair will dominate the S. Main St. business district for three days, closing at midnight Saturday.

Now virtually a tradition, and drawing an increasing number of homecomers from various sections of the country, the fair has been sponsored annually since 1919 by Benjamin Firestone Post 290, American Legion. It actually started out in the 1880's as a pumpkin show, and went along in that style for some years until the event was expanded in connection with the village's centennial celebration in 1905.

S. Main St. from the Public Square to Railroad St. will be closed off Wednesday at 6 p.m. as various rides and concessions begin to move in. Harry Lundgren, fair secretary, said that Deggeller Amusements will again supply the rides. He said the merchants' tent on the south end of the midway, will have an even greater array of displays than ever, ranging from new cars to boats, from flowers to refrigerators.

Mrs. LAURA GUSTAFSON of 412 Union St. will be hostess for the meeting of the Queen Esther Class of Grace United Church of Christ Wednesday at 8 p.m. Mrs. Iva Morris will be associate hostess.

12 Negroes Enter Little Rock Schools

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Little Rock, where school desegregation erupted into violence in 1957 and 1959, today begins its third year of mixed high school classes. Officials looked for a quiet school opening.

Twelve Negroes were assigned to two once-white high schools. Police detailed a few officers to the two integrated schools, Central and Hall, but no opposition was expected.

The president of the segregationist Capital Citizens Council, Dr. Malcolm Taylor, said his organization planned no demonstrations.

Training Session Set For Tank Reserve Unit

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: "Bitter 16" described how it felt to stand around at parties, laughing and pretending to have a good time. Her heart was really breaking because no fellow would ask her to dance.

Well, I'm a fellow 17, and there's a side to the story that hasn't been told yet.

You always criticize guys for running after dolls with filled-out shapes. Do you know how it is with us no-so-handsome fellows? Well, let me tell you.

I'm not very tall and guess you'd call me puny. I don't expect Sandra Dee to flip over me but if these girls who feel so out of it would give us shy guys a little encouragement, they wouldn't be so lonesome—and neither would we.

I've been turned down so many times I feel like an army blanket. Some girls would rather stand around feeling sorry for themselves than dance with an ordinary guy.—LAUGH CLOWN LAUGH.

1-14 FOOD AND THOUGHT
Dear Ann: The letter signed "Too Timid Maybe" should have been signed "Too Nervy for Sure."

Anyone who drops in uninvited and isn't offered refreshments within the first half hour should take the hint and go home. It takes plenty of brass to stick around for three hours—with young children yet!

It figures, however, that the insensitive bore who would drop in without first calling to see if it's convenient would also gripe because nobody offered her or her kids something to eat.

"Breaking bread" together is a symbol of friendship and it goes back as far as Biblical times. Sharing food and drink is an expression of good fellowship.

You refer to "feeding the guests" with disdain (like feeding the monkeys) and suggest that this is an American custom. I've been to your country (which shall be unnamed in the interests of international relations) and the "casual" snack at your informal cocktail parties could pass for dinner over here.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I sometimes have the impression you people offer food and drink as a substitute for ideas. When the conversation becomes dull, you are always ready to pass the potato chips and peanuts.

When guests come to my home I never serve them a bite of food unless they have been invited for dinner. In my opinion this is the mature approach to entertaining. Do you agree?—S. K.

Unfair Decision In Rome

Feelings run high in any sport event, and they probably run higher at that summit meeting of athletes, the Olympic Games, than anywhere else.

That is why the Olympic encampment at Rome is as much stirred by the squabble between the United States and some swimming event officials as by the contests still to be staged.

The evidence seems clear that the United States was robbed of a gold medal. The electronic devices showed Lance Larson won the 100-meter free-style event, but the judges gave the medal to Australia's John Devitt on the basis of what they thought they saw.

SINCE THE JUDGES were not unanimous in their decision, however, a protest was called for. It was made by the United States, but the International Swimming Federation voted to leave the coveted medal in the hands of the Australian.

It is at such a point that the real test of an Olympic competitor comes into play. Trained from the outset of his athletic career to put the will to win above all, he suddenly is expected to show himself a graceful loser, even if his defeat is unfair.

For sportsmanship is the raison d'être of the Olympic Games. And it is not uncommon for the sportsmanlike loser to win more respect than the medalholder.

An example that comes to mind is the great Jim Thorpe, who won the gold medals for the decathlon and the pentathlon in the 1912 Olympics and thereupon was proclaimed the "world's greatest athlete."

But he was robbed of his gold medals because of a picayunish charge that he had played semiprofessional baseball as a summer job while he was a college student.

The interesting thing about it, however, is that Jim Thorpe still is remembered as the "world's greatest athlete" nearly 50 years after his tragic disappointment. Nobody remembers the names of the men who got his medals. They are printed in fine type in the record books, but who bothers to look them up?

AMERICANS should be proud that Lance Larson and his teammates stuck up for their rights when they felt they had been treated unfairly. But now that the rhubarb has been irrevocably decided, we hope they will recall the story of Jim Thorpe, swallow their anger if not their disappointment, and play their hearts out from here on.

They will be representing the United States in its true light—a nation of good sportsmen with an unquenchable will to win.

When Freedom Looks Foolish

The most captivating campaign idea since Franklin Roosevelt's fireside chats is a series of televised debates between Vice President Nixon and Sen. Kennedy. Everybody would be interested.

But because of an iron-handed ruling by a wooden-headed agency under wooly authority granted by a muddle-minded Congress, this master stroke cannot come off without a special resolution of the House of Representatives to back up a special resolution of the Senate to exempt radio and television from giving the same time to all presidential candidates.

Among known parties with presidential candidates, besides the Republican and Democratic parties, are the Constitution party, Vegetarian party, Prohibition party, Christian National party, Mississippi Black and Tan party, For America party, American party and perhaps a few others even more obscure.

The evolution in question passed the Senate last June 27 by a voice vote. It is scheduled to come before the House Interstate Commerce Committee Aug. 16.

It calls for suspension of a requirement in the Federal Communications Act of 1934 that has been interpreted to mean that every top-office candidate, including presidential candidates, must be given or sold as much time as every other top-office candidate.

The Federal Communications Commission is to file a report on the suspension no later than next March 1, including recommendations for future legislation. It is reasonable to assume it might recommend then that whatever it is now which has been interpreted in a way to make freedom look foolish should be changed around in way to give freedom a break.

Maybe In the Next 40 Years

In the 40 years that have passed and been commemorated since U.S. women were given the right to vote, everything has happened, except the one thing idealists were hoping would happen when the 19th amendment to the Constitution had been ratified.

Women still haven't won the right to share political responsibility with men. They vote but they do not play an equal role in politics. They can determine the outcome of elections, but they have nothing to say about candidates and issues on which elections are held. Their place in organized politics has been dramatized in 1956 and again this year by televised convention proceedings. They are restricted to blowing pitch pipes for male soloists, turning the sheet music on the piano and trilling innocuous solos while the boys are out on the front porch smoking black cigars and trading stories.

Things aren't a whole lot different from 40 years ago, except that the ladies now are reminded that they have the vote, don't they, and what more could a woman want? They have a right to address envelopes, ring doorbells, haul voters to the polls, pour tea and coffee at neighborhood roundups and stand on the platform next to their husbands and wave to the cameras. What else could a reasonable woman expect?

Most women apparently are satisfied. But if some of them wonder why, with a majority of electors from their sex, they are treated by men politicians as if they weren't bright enough to make decisions, their wonderment is understandable. But they mustn't be in too much of a hurry. Until 1920, they weren't considered even bright enough to mark down with a pencil a simple X mark signifying what their husbands and other male mentors would tell them they should vote for.

Maybe in the next 40 years there will get the rest of the idea and demand the responsibility that goes with the right to vote.

Harry Roller's Record

When Harry Roller of Greenford retired the other day after 32 years as a school bus driver, hundreds of former students probably recalled pleasant memories of the days when they rode Mr. Roller's buses to and from Greenford school in the rural Salem district.

They also couldn't help but experience a sense of gratitude to such a faithful and cautious school worker who, in his many years of steering his buses over all kinds of roads in all sorts of weather, never had an accident.

Good bus drivers like Mr. Roller are just as essential as good teachers and administrators.

Youngsters Afoot

Many small children will go to school for the first time this week and motorists will have to assume a major share of responsibility for their safety.

First graders, for example, will be guided by their mothers for the first few days but after that it will be "solo." The youngsters will rely on the crossing guards and alert motorists to see them safely across busy intersections.

Some children are aware of traffic dangers. Others are not.

It behoves all of us to be doubly alert at this time of the year when school classes are resuming. Drive carefully!

Once Over

Big TV station is conducting a school for political candidates. Teaches them how not to put their best "foot-in-mouth" forward.

It has 50 candidates for public office studying makeup, attire and other secrets of TV popularity. It is no longer enough for candidate to be a solid, capable American; he must also be a "ham" actor.

Chances for election are improved if he can make the folks pass up Bat Masterson, the Play of the Week and Groucho Marx.

If TV had been around in Lincoln's day he would have got the nomination more easily if he had let makeup man efface the moles and had a crew-haircut, the right colored shirt and ear-to-ear smile. Alton B. Parker might have put up better race against Teddy Roosevelt if he had developed his personality coast to coast.

All the world's a stage and all the office seekers merely people who know how to register on living room screen. Show business techniques are, in fact, recognized as vital importance in political campaigns.

Both major parties are enlisting Hollywood, Broadway and airwave stars, knowing that glamour counts these days. Democrats have Sinatra and Peter Lawford among others. G.O.P. has countered with list including John Wayne, Helen Hayes, Katherine Cornell and Walter Pidgeon.

Cleveland got in without even asking if he could depend on Leslie Carter. But that's ancient history. Show biz celebrities count. Modern election could be entitled "Up The Potomac With Fame and Glamour."

By H. I. Phillips

WITH COSTS OF TRAVEL reaching new heights daily, service at American railroad stations is at lowest ebb in history. Day when porters were readily available is done for, and there are scores of railroad stations where it is almost impossible to find one by telescope. Situation is especially tough on women and all travelers beyond youthful years.

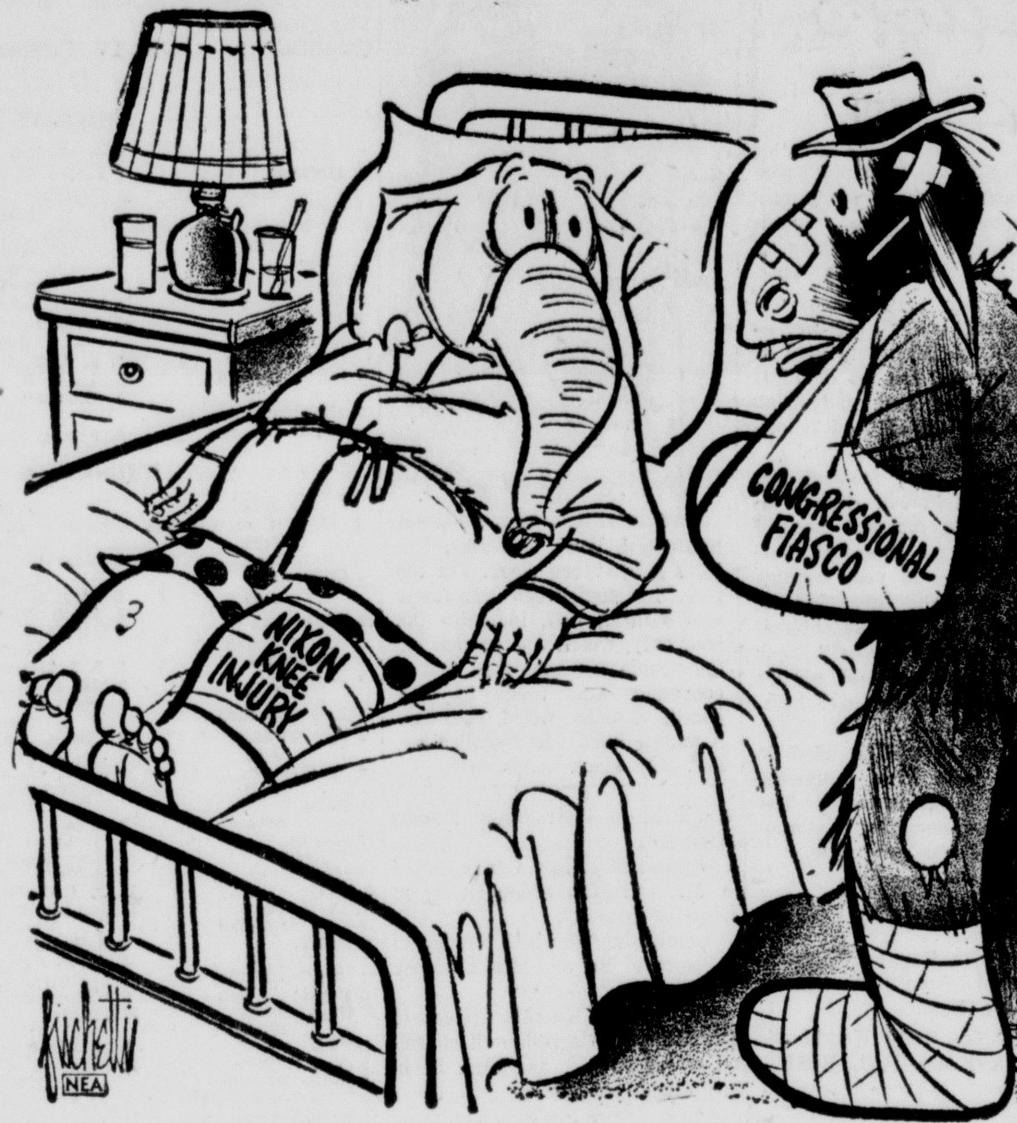

Where is summer, Bright and gay? Zowie! It went Thataway!

New York State Liquor Authority opposes use of Santa Claus in Christmas liquor packaging. Portrayal of St. Nick as pitchman for holiday hard stuff went pretty far. Lots of folks had begun reading famed lines as "On Prancer, on Dancer, on Bottles and Crocks," on Donner, on Blitzen, on Rye-On-The-Rocks.

The Authority also cracks down on using bottles which can be converted into gift-lamps, decanters, etc.; or packages which can serve as sewing-baskets. Grandma darning socks with an assist from the distilleries is a little hard to take, the Authority holds.

As grapes are made into wine Dad won't be the only pop in the basement in some homes.

"Move Over"

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

During the week before the brogue-laden voice of Michael J. Quill rolled out the order to strike the "Pennsy," the world's biggest railroad lost seven million dollars. Few freight shippers wanted their wares stranded in the splendid isolation either side of Altoona's famous Horsehoe Curve.

After that, the loss came to two million daily for the line or an average of 14 million a week.

That's a lot of business even in this affluent society of ours.

But there is no legal manner in which any neutral force private or governmental can end a rail strike or any strike for that matter once the conflict has passed through all those polite cooling off stages.

The President of the United States, the one man who did have such power, lost it during the spring of 1952. Then we signed the Japanese peace treaty.

As the ink dried, in effect, the President lost his wartime emergency powers. Thus there could have been no way to end the steel strike even if it ran another year.

And there is no way to end a strike on the nation's 600 railroad companies or its 10 major commercial airlines or a general trucking stoppage.

This worked so well the original six lines took in the other big four. These 10 flying companies cover 90 per cent of the airborne business.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO a group of industrialists anticipated this and decided to develop strike insurance or, as the public relations front office puts it, work stoppage pay. And there you have the next field of battle.

Slowly this strike insurance will change the dueling tactics of labor and management as assuredly as bows and arrows moved civilization out of the cave man era.

Tell you why. This insurance brings the leaders of industry together to help each other survive a strike instead of carving up each other's business. This makes it possible to hold out longer.

The strike insurance phenomenon then brings the councils of different industries together as they discuss mutual problems and try to bolster the insurance technique across all lines.

Thus each industry will be able to match the single union or joint labor council sitting across from it at the bargaining table.

Kicked By a Mule

Owing to a misunderstanding about head room in my supercompact car, a cap suitable for motor has been bestowed on me by benefactors.

They thought there wasn't enough room to wear a hat inside the little car, which was their error. It's regular-size cars that don't have enough clearance for a hat.

So I have a beautiful new cap.

This is one of those things I wouldn't buy for myself. I would buy a cap to go hunting in, or for working outside in bad weather, or for snow-shoveling. But I wouldn't buy a dress-up cap — not after wearing a hat for the last umpteen years.

My last dress-up cap was in my wardrobe the September I sought higher education. It was in high style — full in the crown, with a wide-angle brim that stuck out to the side.

I'd forgotten how comfortable a cap is. No headgear for men ever has approached it. It is the only utilitarian headress. In bright sun, the brim can be pulled down to shade the eyes. In other circumstances, the brim can be worn down the back of the neck, to shield water.

A cap can be worn primly or rakishly. It warms the balding head and can be used to fetch water, carry fruit, or as an auxiliary dispatch case. It can be stuffed into a pocket, snuggled into the arm, or tossed into the air.

I deplore the circumstances that make me skittish about throwing away my hat, which never has been comfortable, and going back to caps, where I started and might have stayed, if I hadn't been kicked in the head by a white mule.

This character wanted my new cap so bad he could taste it. My roommate and I wanted white mule so bad . . . well, we could taste it, if we insisted. This happened in a place and in an era when white mule was outlawed.

I gave up the cap. The rest of the story is the difference between durable and consumer goods. The cap may still be a sensation in the back-country. The consumer good vanished, leaving remorse in their wake and pledge never to play with fire again.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, Kennedy's running mate, spent the weekend at his Texas ranch near Austin. He will speak Thursday in Boston and campaign Friday in Hartford, Conn., and New York City before returning to Washington on Saturday.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Nixon's running mate, makes the first formal speech of his campaign today in the high school at Abingdon, Pa. Accompanied by New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Lodge campaigned over the holiday weekend at beaches in the New York area. Thousands of bathers greeted them as they toured by helicopter — shaking hands, patting babies and munching on hot dogs.

His resignation was announced by Mayor Robert Harding, who appointed William B. Baumgardner, 22, of E. Main St. as a cadet patrolman to succeed Rambo. Baumgardner, a four-year veteran of the Marine Corps, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Baumgardner. He is married and has one child.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Donna, leaving 70 dead in its wake, whirled west northwest in the Atlantic today, still a threat to the U.S. mainland.

Donna slowed her forward movement to 10 miles per hour but still packed winds up to 125 miles per hour over a small area near the center.

Early today the season's fourth tropical storm was about 200 miles east southeast of Turks Island in the Bahamas and 800 miles east-southeast of Miami, the nearest mainland point.

The hurricane's path indicated it may pass to the east of the Bahamian Islands.

"We have not been moving ahead in recent years," he said. "And we have not been moving ahead in recent years."

As chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Africa, Kennedy felt it was proper for him to call for information from the State Department.

Kennedy said in a statement that he feels the Soviet flights could have a single purpose—"to bring the cold war to the Congo and to undermine the freedom and newly won independence of the African people."

Standing on a temporary platform in a park at Muskegon, Mich., with a yellow harvest moon peering over the horizon, Kennedy spelled out his attitude toward Eisenhower in a simple sentence.

"I admire the President of the United States as a man," he said, "but we cannot continue to live under the kind of leadership we have had."

Americans Add Five More Gold Medals in Track, Boxing

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor
ROME (AP) — Hulking Al Oerter of West Babylon, N.Y., led qualifiers in defense of his Olympic discus championship with a record-breaking toss today but world record holder Rafter Johnson slipped back to second after six events of the grueling 10-event decathlon.

Oerter, leading a three-man American advance into the discus finals, hurled the disk 191 feet, 8½ inches—smashing by more than six feet his Olympic mark of 184-10% set in winning the event at Melbourne in 1956.

Advancing with the former Kansas star were Rank Babka, former Southern California great from Manhattan Beach, Calif., and Dick Cochran, former Missouri ace from Brookfield, Mo.

Babka hit 178-8½ and Cochran 176-5½.

None pressed himself since all that was required was to top the qualifying standard of 170-7½. Twenty-two of the 36 entries made it into the final, including such challengers to U.S. discus hopes as world champion Edmund Piatkowski of Poland, Józef Szewczenyi of Hungary, and Vladimir Trusevich and Kim Bukanov of Russia.

Also making it was Adolfo Consolini, who won the Olympic discus gold medal for Italy in 1948.

Ira Davis of Philadelphia was among the qualifiers for the afternoon hop, step and jump finals with 51-3½ in which Josef Schmidt of Poland established an Olympic mark of 53-11½.

But all was overshadowed by the tremendous duel underway in the decathlon—the discus, pole vault, javelin and 1,500 meter run—all will be contested before the day is over.

Phil Mulkey of Memphis, the only other U.S. decathlon entry still competing, did poorly in the hurdles and was well back in the overall listings with 4,042 points.

Dave Edstrom of Sherwood, Ore., the third U.S. entry, was forced to retire Monday when he pulled a leg muscle in the broad jump.

picked up 923 points for a six-event total of 5,515. Johnson, with day is over.

Phil Mulkey of Memphis, the only other U.S. decathlon entry still competing, did poorly in the hurdles and was well back in the overall listings with 4,042 points.

Dave Edstrom of Sherwood, Ore.,

the third U.S. entry, was forced to retire Monday when he pulled a leg muscle in the broad jump.

Showing the exhausting strain of Monday's first five events although he is the bigger man. That was about the only mis-physically, Johnson could do not better than 15.3 seconds today in the sixth event—the 110-meter hurdles. When Yang did 14.6, he picked up 923 points for a six-

event total of 5,515. Johnson, with 740 points for the hurdles, had an overall total of 5,387.

Russia's Vasiliy Kuznetsov had moved up to third place but with 4,812 he had a long way to go to catch the two leaders.

The four events remaining in the decathlon—the discus, pole vault, javelin and 1,500 meter run all will be contested before the day is over.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. H. T. HYMAN

Families Can Recognize 'Little Strokes'

When you speak of a "stroke," off the blood supply to an area of brain tissue of variable size, the listener is apt to see, in his mind's eye, the picture of a person who's suffered a paralysis of one side of the body (hemiplegia).

And he's apt to assume that he cause for the hemiplegia was a brain hemorrhage that resulted from a break in a brittle artery (cerebral arteriosclerosis).

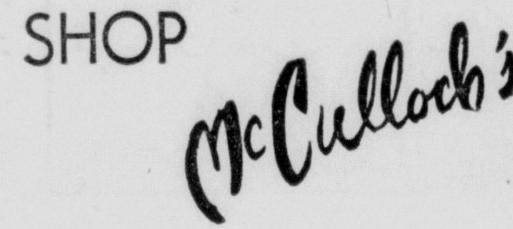

Yet the vast majority of "strokes" do not result in hemiplegia. And most of them, by far, are due to a clot within the arteriosclerotic artery (cerebral thrombosis) that shuts my good friend and fellow communist, the medical profession has been alerted to the great frequency and importance of "small strokes."

Since early recognition of the "small stroke" may delay and even prevent the occurrence of the "big stroke," and since members of the family may be in a more favorable position to make this recognition than a physician, I'd like to describe for you what happens when a person suffers one of these minor cerebral accidents.

HERE ARE JUST a few of the happenings that may arouse your suspicions:

1. The complaints of a "queer feeling" in the head that lasts only a short time. Or that seems to come and go.

A change in the person's character, capabilities, judgment or conduct. For example, the very proper person who suddenly becomes coarse or noisy. The competent person who begins to make all sorts of mistakes (can't balance checkbook; forgets birthdays and anniversaries; misplaces personal articles like eyeglasses).

Or the wise member of the family who no longer seems able to make up his mind. Or who gives obviously foolish advice. Or the neat person who becomes careless in dress or table manners.

3. A marked change in the person's emotional behavior. Like impatience or sudden fits of rage. Or loss of interest and a lack of reaction to pleasures or misfortunes.

4. A DETERIORATION in capacities. Like slowing and halting of speech. Difficulty getting out of a chair. Unsteadiness on feet. Stumbling gait. Frequent slips or tumbles. Changed handwriting and misspellings.

5. Changes in habits and appearance. Lessening of appetite with weight loss. Greater difficulty getting up in the morning.

Frequent periods of snoozing during conversations, in front of TV or when left alone for a few moments. Loss of alertness in expression ("just doesn't look right"; "has suddenly begun to look old").

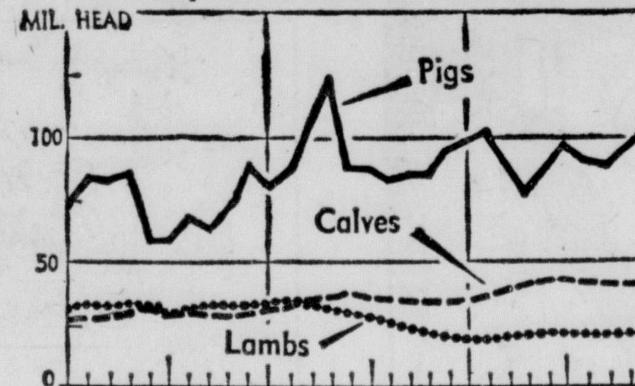

PERHAPS NOW you understand what I meant when I suggested that these signs would be more readily recognizable by members of the family than a physician. Especially a specialist who might be seeing the patient for the first time.

And if they're recognized in good time, there are many things your doctor can do to delay the "big stroke." And maybe prevent it entirely.

PIGS, CALVES AND LAMBS

UP AND DOWN — The pig crop this year is smaller but there have been slightly more calves and lambs. So says the U.S. Department of Agriculture which expects pigs to be down 11 per cent from 1959. The calf crop will be up about 1 per cent and lambs 2 per cent over last year. Additionally, the figures for cattle and sheep were up.

Senate Committee To Finish Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Winding up a year-long series of hearings, a Senate subcommittee turns its attention this week to prices of antibiotic drugs.

The hearings before the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee open Wednesday and are to continue through next Wednesday.

Prices of other kinds of drugs have been studied at the earlier sessions.

Committee aides said no further public investigations into drug prices are scheduled after the current series. Attention then will be given to drafting possible legislation to tighten antitrust laws and compel more price competition.

Chairman Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., has said repeatedly that the hearings have shown what he called unconscionable profit margins by some manufacturers in the prices they charge for newer drugs. The subcommittee has not looked into retail price markups.

Needlecraft

WRONG CHARGE

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Raymond Couser, 43, drew an 18-month prison sentence on a charge he chased his wife with a swing blade grass cutter.

Couser denied the charge.

"It wasn't a swing blade at all," he insisted. "It was just a piece of wood I had brought home to make a table leg out of."

2 Flaming Objects Plow Into Yard In Connecticut

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Two objects that fell flaming from the sky and plowed into the back yard of an apartment house will be sent to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington, police said.

Police said the small chunks landed with a hissing sound Sunday night.

Prof. Robert L. Brown of Southern Connecticut State College said: "There's a reasonably good chance that this particle may be a fragment from an orbiting satellite, possibly Sputnik IV, which broke into many particles after launching earlier this year."

A woman told police she saw a brilliant object passing overhead about the time the objects came earth.
